surreywalks

Watts Gallery & Littleton Loop - 5.8km

Car Park to Pilgrim Wood

Leave the Watts Gallery cark park (GU3 1DQ) and turn left onto Down Lane. You only need to walk a few metres before turning left and passing the bench on the bridge. Turn left again to go somewhat back on yourself, onto Sandy Lane, As the name suggest the terrain here is loose sand, compacted only by tire tracks. While it's possible you might meet a vehicle here, I'd say it's very unlikely. Keep walking straight ahead, continuing when the path narrows and going straight over at the first crossroads you come to. Soon you'll reach a slight fork where you need to bear left towards the fields. Take the slight right straight after the fork to basically continue going east (the same direction you've been going since joining Sandy Lane. Continue until you reach a T junction.

Pilgrim Wood to Loseley Park

Turn right at the t junction and follow the path. As the road forks, head downhill onto Littleton Lane. At the first crossroads you come to, turn right so that you're now walking west. You're effectively heading back to the car park on a track that's parallel to the route you took on the way out, so you shouldn't get lost from here. You'll go through a few kissing gates, and arrive at a small pond. It can be quite muddy around this point. Continue walking until you get to a cross roads. You'll want to go straight over, but the path continues a little to your right rather than directly ahead. Follow this path as it bends left. This stretch can also be quite muddy but there's a narrow fork on the left you can take to avoid the worst of it. You'll pop out at a T junction which you'll want to turn right at.

surreywalks

Loseley Park to Car Park

After turning right, you can follow a nice path for a while until you reach a junction. Turn right and then immediately left up some stairs. The stairs, especially the first few steps, are quite worn away so it can be tricky, but there is a handrail that helps. Keep walking until you reach a junction with a kissing gate on your left. Turn right here and then left immediately to keep heading west. Continue until you reach the stables. Look out for a gate up and to your right and go through it. This path can be quite narrow and overgrown in summer months. Eventually you'll pop out on the main road. Turn right onto the painted walkway and you'll be in sight of the Watts Gallery.

Enjoyed this walk? Check out more like it at SurreyWalks.co.uk